

COMMUNITY HEALTH WORKER

PROFESSIONAL SKILLS TRAINING COURSE

Developing and building the skills of new and seasoned Community Health Workers and other front-line professionals committed to advancing community health.

WHAT, EXACTLY, IS A COMMUNITY HEALTH WORKER? Community Health Worker (CHW) is an umbrella term. Their job titles are as diverse as the communities, sites and roles in which CHWs serve. CHWs focus on improving individual and community health and health access. They forge connections where people live, learn, work, worship and heal, from the inner city to rural communities. (c3project.org)

Just as CHW job titles vary, so do the roles, populations of focus and specific responsibilities. However, roles tend to fall within the following:

1. Cultural mediation among individuals, communities, and health and social service systems
2. Providing culturally appropriate health education and information
3. Care coordination, case management, and system navigation
4. Providing coaching and social support
5. Advocating for individuals and communities
6. Building individual and community capacity
7. Providing direct service and education
8. Implementing individual and community assessments
9. Conducting outreach and program enrollment
10. Participating in evaluation and research

One thing is well known—CHWs are a rapidly growing component of the healthcare workforce in this country. The U.S. Department of Labor anticipates an 18% increase in the CHW workforce between 2016-2026, which is much faster than the average for all occupations. (U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics)

WHAT IS DRIVING THE GROWTH OF THE CHW ROLE?

- Growing recognition that social determinants impact the health and well-being of individuals and communities
- Importance of reaching underserved, marginalized and cultural segments of communities to improve health status and reduce risk
- Enrollment of targeted populations into healthcare or social services programs
- Improving engagement of attributed populations
- Increasing the diversity of the healthcare team to best serve the patients physical, emotional and social needs

WHY IS CHW TRAINING IMPORTANT?

The educational background of the CHWs is varied, ranging from high school to college level graduates. The CHW is often hired for their “soft skills” of relationship-building, cultural competence, and connection or experience with the target population. The complex knowledge and skills of healthcare engagement and navigation are new to most, as is the dynamic of operating within a team-based environment.

Most professions, particularly in healthcare, require training in order to achieve and/or maintain certification or licensure. As an emerging workforce, in many areas of the country there are limited or no requirements for CHWs. To ensure CHWs are skilled and effective in their work, payers, health systems and community-based organizations are increasingly seeking and investing in training CHWs. This training meets the national standard for Department of Labor Registered CHW Apprenticeship.

HOW IS THE TRAINING DELIVERED?

There are two ways to access this training course—through a U.S. Department of Labor approved Registered Apprenticeship or as a stand-alone course. The “classroom” training has the same content in either approach.

CHW PROFESSIONAL SKILLS

The CHW Professional Skills Training course is delivered in 23 weekly classes of 90-minute sessions (34.5 hours) that are accessible to individuals through an online real-time interactive learning environment facilitated by ICCC faculty and guest experts. Textbooks, articles, videos and other resources are included within the curriculum and students will complete an additional 3-5 hours of homework each week. Optional onsite education and networking events are scheduled periodically in Des Moines, Iowa. These sessions may be accessed virtually.

CHW REGISTERED APPRENTICESHIP

The CHW Professional Skills can also be accessed as part of a U.S. Department of Labor-approved Registered Apprenticeship program. While the training curriculum is the same with either option, there are additional requirements of the organizations enrolling a CHW through the Registered Apprenticeship program.

Pricing

CHW Professional Skills Training _____ $1,500
